Chapter 1 : Kings General Daphne Maurier 1946 First

The king's general is a novel, published in 1946, by english author and playwright daphne du maurier. The king's general is a complex and compelling story. du maurier weaves together a bitter-sweet love story and a tale of brutal civil war then adds a dash of suspense. the characters she creates are based on actual people and this is the third novel i've read written by daphne du maurier, she is an amazingly talented writer. The most fascinating factor in the king's general is that the story is based on a real english estate. menabilly had been daphne du maurier's home since the moment she married lieutenant-general sir frederick browning.
